

Safe Operations and COVID-19

Monday, June 8, 2020

---

BC Libraries Cooperative (BCLC) recognizes the importance of worker safety as we plan to re-open our Vancouver office at 268 Keefer Street, Suite330 for a limited number of staff. The majority of Co-op staff will continue to work from their home offices, as was past practice prior to Covid-19. In order to meet social distancing guidelines, only the three staff and one sub-lease who have regular desks at the Vancouver office will be permitted to work from the office and no in-person meetings beyond the 4 regular office staff will be permitted at this time, i.e. the rest of staff will continue to work remotely and to meet virtually via video or conference calls.

The following return to safe operation guidelines will provide employees with information and resources to assist them in ensuring the risk of exposure to COVID-19 is minimized at the Vancouver office. For the purpose of this COVID-19 specific exposure plan, BCLC considers the following symptoms, as defined by BC Centre for Disease Control, applicable for the workplace:

- Fever
- Chills
- Cough
- Shortness of breath
- Sore throat
- Stuffy or runny nose
- Loss of sense of smell
- Headaches
- Muscle aches
- Fatigue
- Loss of appetite

If you are experiencing any of the above symptoms, please complete the BC COVID-19 Assessment Tool and follow the instructions provided: <https://bc.thrive.health/covid19/en>

Assessment

Assessment and identification associated with the risk of Covid-19 transmission encompasses limited access to the Vancouver office. Limited access is defined as:

- Maximum office capacity: 4 persons, to include only those 3 BCLC staff and 1 sub-lease, who have regular desks at the Vancouver office.
- No members of the public, BCLC members, guests or other BCLC staff will be permitted to access the Vancouver office during until provincial guidelines indicate a change

Risk Reduction Measures

COVID-19 spreads in several ways, including through droplets when a person coughs or sneezes, or from touching a contaminated surface before touching the face.

BCLC has implemented the following risk reduction measures:

- Remote work from home offices will continue for the majority of staff and working from the office is optional for the 3 staff and 1 sub-lease
- Prohibit staff with Covid-19 symptoms from reporting to work at the Vancouver office
- Prohibit staff exposed to a confirmed Covid-19 from reporting to work at the Vancouver office
- Physical distancing measures, i.e. maintain a 2- meter distance from others
- Covid-19 specific signage and instruction that supports safe work practices
- Mandate frequent and thorough hand washing
- Hygiene etiquette
- Additional cleaning and disinfecting of workplace

Policy

BCLC has made amendments to the Worksafe policy as follows:
